The American embargo conference ampaign was the biggest demonstraion of pro-Germanism which this country has had. One of these telegrams came to Sen ter Husting from Colonel Fred Pabst and some of his neighbors at the little lown of Oconomowoc, where he had retired to live like a gentleman farmer on his brewery profits. It was dated April 21, 1916, and said:

G. H. Jacobsen, founder of the Embargo Conference, which initiated the campaign of which these telegrams were a part, is now solving a sentence on conviction of having conspired to riolate the neutrality of the United States, in that he spent German money in furtherance of a conspiracy in violation of the laws and dangerous to the peace of the United States.

Brewing Interest Only Slightly Camouflaged

"We will openly to day as on every other occasion admit that our hearts are for Germany and Austria. . . . Is the German-American for that reason a less good citizen because under the pressure of circumstances he will now at last cease to allow himself to be used as a tool by selfish politicians and by enemies of the German cause, and finally understands that he can only assert his position by entering upon public life for the realization of his life and his ideals?

"We are proud to call ourselves, citizens of this republic, but we are still prouder to be German-Americans. The hyphen is for us an honor and we carry it with distinction. And we are yet with distinction and we are not make the confession that we preserve the ideals which we took from our old home as sacred, and that we are actively engaged in realizing those ideals to the best of our strength for the welfare of our fatherland."

Joseph Uihlein, who gave $5,000 to support these ideas, put up $50,000 for Arthur Brisbaue's "Washington Times" fund.

Special Dispatch to The Tribune WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 .- The miltary programme of the United States is unchanged by the armistice proposal now under consideration by the Germans. This was positively stated today both by Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

April 19, 1917. The same essential principle holds good against selective conscription. It is not democratic.

It is not equitable.

April 26, 1917. Glad tidings for John Bull and his war mongers. A dirge for American patriots. Food poured into the hoppers of Great Britain and ducats into the coffers of the Steel Trust, while the humble American citizen must tighten his belt and raid his savings to buy bread. And the end is not in sight. Nor an embargo.

May 10, 1917. Isn't that (alleged deaths from starvation in Greece) an encouraging bit of news? Ab-solute-ly! For isn't our good ally. Great Britain, doing the starving? Therefore, let us all arise and sing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

June 6, 1917. If it is the militant mission of the United States to impose its own conception of government on the rest of the world, it has had cause for war since the dawn of the nation.

June 18, 1917. Great Britain dealt least this period the American armed forces will more nearly approximate its present strength overseas = 2,000,000 — due to the fact that undoubtedly there will be designated at the peace table certain territory that must be occupied by Allied forces until the enemy carries out the provisions laid down by the peace conference.

Provision also has been made by the War Department to return to civilian life those members of the armed forces who are most needed in industry. Just how this will be accomplished will depend largely upon the needs of American industry.
